About The NYU United Nations Initiative:

The United Nations Initiative is a student-run organization at NYU, made up of students who are passionate about international relations and global politics. The organization was created in the Fall of 2015 with the aim of serving as an official campus liaison to the United Nations. They are part of NYU's Model United Nations, one of NYU's largest and most prestigious organizations, comprised of over 300 members from a wide range of educational and cultural backgrounds. They host influential global leaders, including Ambassadors, Heads of State, and representatives from various UN Bodies in the hopes of lessening the gap between the youth and political change and understanding.
